Part B. CV SUMMARY (max. 3500 characters, including spaces)

Alberto González Remuiñán (A Coruña, Spain) is PhD from the University of Santiago de Compostela (Spain, 2019) in Contemporary History. Graduated in History (2011), he also has a master's degree in Contemporary History (2012) and another one in High School Education following the speciality of Social Sciences and Humanities (2013), all obtained in the aforesaid institution. He studies rural, agriculture, social and economic history of 18th and 19th centuries in the northwest edge of the Iberian Peninsula, especially from the perspective of the local peasant communities and their inner dynamics. These lines of investigation put their focus on various aspects such as socioeconomic changes of rural societies at the final moments of Ancient Regime, state of agriculture and farmer activities, or social conflict against tax system, including concealment and resistances, on this period.
